I. APPROVAL OF MINUTES OF APRIL 22, 2021 MEETING

Chairman France asked for a motion for approval of the Minutes of the April 22, 2021 Board Meeting. Commissioner Morrison moved for approval of same, seconded by Commissioner Morrell. All were in favor, and the Minutes of the April 22, 2021 Board meeting were adopted.

Commissioner France moves to present the Legal Report out of order. See Section VI, below for full Legal Report.

ASMREPORT

Doug Thornton provides a brief explanation to the Board on the current fiscal year budget, noting an approximate $12.SM shortfall on the budget forecast. But, April collections were $400,000 than expected, tracking in the neighborhood of the $12.SM. In closing the gap, there's a supplemental appropriation request before the Legislature, with a possible amendment to this supplemental appropriation to bridge some of the gap, part of which would be reimbursement for insurance premiums paid to ORM and part to cover any additional shortfalls.

Still pending is the American Rescue Plan, the federal appropriation to the State and local governments that is intended to be used to reimburse agencies, such as the LSED, for lost tax revenues.

For FY ending June 2021, we're forecasting lost tax revenues to the LSED in the range of $62.0 to $63.0M, and coupled with the loss of event income, that's a pretty dramatic impact on the budget. It was necessary to use some of the borrowed capital to cover the shortfall throughout the year, approximately $37.0M. The borrowed capital was derived from the Bond Anticipation Notes. Without a Supplemental Appropriation and the ARP money, the borrowed capital would have to be used to bridge the $12.SM shortfall. The budget approved by the Board today has about a $15.SM forecasted shortfall. Budget variables depend on reopening, hosting concerts, and playing football at 100%. In terms of forecasting the budget, we working on a month-to-month basis with all state officials and the staff in the House and Senate. It's expected that there will be a $15.SM shortfall in FY 2022. There may be a surplus at the State level at the end of the session next year. The State has $673M surplus at present, which is being used as part of the Supplemental Appropriation in the current session.

On a positive note, the hotel tax for April was $400,000 better than expected. Given the current status in the community and opening of more establishments, we're more positive on tax collections that forecasted in the 2022 budget. Mr. Thornton hopes that his report answers questions on closing the gap for FY 2021 and the look-ahead budget for 2022.

Turning to the project funding, borrowing of $70M is anticipated (Jason Akers, Bond Counsel concurs). The Bond Commission has authorized LSED to borrow up to $350M. With the $70M, the total borrowed would be $190M, well below the authorized threshold of the Bond Commission. It's anticipated that Capital Outlay appropriations in this session would be $27M, some of which would be in Priority 5 and some in Priority 2. It is also expected that the Bond Commission will take up the issue of debt conversion, allowing the LSED to increase its borrowing capacity of up to $63M, still within the $350M threshold. If that occurs, the result is that, with the $63M debt conversion and Capital Outlay, it forms the basis of the $90M previously committed by the State for the Master Plan Project. Mr. Thornton reiterates that the American Rescue Plan money would still be needed, perhaps not right away, but between now and July 2023, when it is time to refinance the entire debt originally anticipated.

Mr. Thornton turns over the floor to Mr. Akers, Bond Counsel.

Mr. Akers concurs with Mr. Thornton's comprehensive summary. The upcoming borrowing was planned all along, which continues the construction through mid-part of 2022, following which options and requirements will be analyzed. The borrowing is structured to provide operational flexibility for the budget and within the confines of applicable law. Mr. Akers is also comfortable with the current position and the direction it's going when it is time for the next tranche of Bond Anticipation Notes. Mr. Akers concludes his summary by noting that 2023 is a big unknown at present, and his team is monitoring hotel tax recovery, other available revenues, and types of recovery funds that would be made available.

Mr. Thornton continues with good news that events begin in July at Champions Square and the Dome and concerts in the Fall at the Arena, a very positive revenue growth.

The challenge will be to bring back all of the facility workers, something playing out across America, including Centerplate. There's competition with other business that are restarting, which is pretty fierce for both full-time and part-time labor. Job fares will be accelerated, looking also at incentives for full/part-time employees. To host a football game, 3,000 workers are required, half of which are in Centerplate's food service department and the other on the operations level. ASM's HR and Events Departments, led by Farrow Bouton, are aggressively out recruiting to fill the roster. Last year's football season did not present a problem, and we're hopeful for this season to have recruited and trained the adequate number of employees. All of this will be at an increased cost, some of which were brought on by COVID and perhaps can be passed on to event organizers, through increased rents and reimbursable expenses. All PPE equipment had to be purchased; there were no Cares Act, State, or City reimbursement.

With the Shrine On Airline Amendment being passed at this meeting, ASM can appropriately budget for this facility, having delegated authority from the LSED to represent it with regard to negotiations, on an event-by-event basis. The rugby games have been a success, making the Shrine the most active building at present.

[This concludes the ASM report]

Evan Holmes presents the Services Report. With respect to the renovation project, Phase 2 work continues, with noticeable changes in the facility, such as standing room decks and North End Zone Club Suites coming on line. Going forward with the next round, and in preparation for the Final Four in April 2022, the balance of the work will set off after the Final Four in order to complete the work. Even if there's construction, work continues in the details with the contractor and design team on future scopes to be in sequence and feathered in, from operational and budget standpoints as well.

Turning to the Shrine and its activities, Mr. Holmes comments that this [the Amendment passed] allows for an appropriate level of resource for personnel to run the facility just like the Dome and Smoothie King Center, and he comments Grant Hall and Tim Suire's team in managing that. Mr. Holmes reminds everyone that the baseball team previously controlled all of the commercial rights, managed schedules, booked events, and retained revenues. Under the new arrangement, even though the LSED continues to pay expenses, overhead, and staff, revenue will come back and offset that. It's a positive note for all parties, including Jefferson Parish and the Jefferson Performing Arts Center.

Turning to the Zurich Classic, Luke Farabaugh, General Manager of the TPC of Louisiana, reported that this year's event was the highest television-viewed since 2006 and 50% over-viewed for 2019. This Classic was the first large-scale event in the metro area since COFID. The course played well, a result of the regressing, and drainage was better than expected. The PGA Tour commented it was the best drainage facility they've experienced.

[This concludes the Services Report.]

Zane Collings presents the Facility Operations Report, turning to NOLA Gold games, a couple of drive-in vents, the KIPP graduation, and the end of the Pelican season. A number of events have been confirmed, such Billie Eilish on February 3, Florida Line at the Smoothie King Center on September 25, and rehearsal of another event in June, with one to follow in 2022. The City has approved 100% capacity, with masks, news that performers were waiting for before moving forward. Three additional events have been confirmed but will not be announced to the public yet. Looking to 2022, 12 concerts are already on the books and expected to increase considerably due to the 100% mask capacity. Operationally, Mr. Collings concurs that recruiting is a challenge, in addition to guest services and ADA fulfillment. Items are out to bid, including a landscaping and HBA contract, plus elevator maintenance at the Shrine.

Mr. Collings takes a moment for Jennifer Talbot of Marketing to display slides of the KIPP Graduation, the Pelicans final game, an e-blast for ticket sales, including Kane Brown, Eric Church, a Mother's Daye-blast, and the monthly front row calendar.

[This concludes the Facility Operations Report]

IV. FINANCE REPORT

David Weidler presents the Finance Report, noting that the past two months of hotel taxes rose slightly, hopefully due to lifting of restrictions. He was conservative in preparing the budget for next year, using a lower attendance level. With the City now opening up 100% for events, the projected shortfall could be less moving forward. There were a lot of unknowns and assumptions. The $15M shortfall should be covered under the plan in place with the State of Louisiana.

Chairman France, on behalf of the Board, commends the Finance Team and Mr. Bouton's and Ms. Talbot's teams, on their incredible work in keeping the facilities operational. There's simply no outline to go to on how to deal with total closures during a pandemic

[This concludes the Finance Report.]

V. CONSTRUCTION REPORT

Eileen Long presents a brief summary of the construction projects, beginning with the Alario kitchen replacement project's substantial completion on May 11 and the final inspection by the Department of Health. The punch-list items are being handled, and close-outs and warranty documents are being transmitted.

A meeting was held with representatives of Jefferson Parish, Duplantis Design Group, Legends, and ASM to review the 90% construction documents with respect to the Westwego Sports Complex. The drawings should be done for Phases 1 and 2 on June 7. If monies are received for Phase 2, Priority 5 moves up to Priority 1 or 2, and bids will go out for Phases 1 and 2 in mid-June. If not, the package will be broken up into Phase 1 and Phase 2, bidding out Phase 1 at the end of June. Phases 1 and 2 have four multipurpose fields, either four large soccer fields or eight baseball diamonds. There's a concession building, two restroom buildings, parking, batting cages, an inclusive playground, lounge, and adaptive whiffle ball field as alternates in Phase 1/Phase 2 bid documents.

Referring to the reports in the Board handouts, the Master Plan for Phases 1, 2, and 3 depicts what the park will look like when completely finished. The budget number for Phase 1 is $17M in hard costs, $9M for Phase 2, and then an overview. If both phases are bid out at the same time, construction would start in mid-August.

Included in the site observation report for the Master Plan are pictures from the past week showing various phases of construction relating to Phase 2. Legends, Broadmoor, and Trahan Architects continue working on design documents for Phases 3A through 5, working on budgets and honing for Phase 3A. In response to Commissioner Morrison's query as to the schedule at the Dome, Mr. Thornton responds that everything is either on schedule or slightly ahead, with plans for going ahead with football and the Monster Truck Show in late July.

[This concludes the Construction Report.]
